Is Sydney's famous Hakoah Club on the verge of pulling out of topclass soccer? The question is on the lips of every one of the Blue-and-Whites' members.

Rumours can usually be nipped in the bud by a firm and unequivocal denial from responsible offi-cials, but such denial was not forthcoming in this

Asked whether he had any comment to make on talk forecasting Sydney City's "The Slickers" withdrawal from Philips League soccer, and its re-emergence in amateur soc-cer, club president Frank Lowy refused to mit himself.

"Nothing has been discussed officially and I'm not denying or confirming the rumours," he said last week.

Such reticence can only add fuel to the gossip and in-crease the concern of the club's dwindling band of faithful

The genesis of the situation goes back to the administrative style of the Hakoah Club over the past decade, but what may have given the final push was the experiment of dropping the team's traditional name of Hakoah for the nondescript district tag of Sydney City.

By any objective judgement the change of name has been an unmitigated disaster.

After an early burst of promotional enthusiasm the ersatz entity of Sydney City is in the situation of playing its matches in front of iniserably tiny crowds of a few

Not only did the promised throngs of new, non-"ethnic" supporters fail to materialise but the decision to discard the club's world-famous and long-honored name has also alienated a considerable section of the traditional base of support in Sydney's Jewish community.

This comes at a time when that community's growth pattern is on the upswing once again, with the continuing influx of large numbers of Soviet Jewish refugees.

influx of large numbers of Soviet Jewish refugees.

Interestingly enough, the first section of the Sydney Jewish community to be alienated from soccer was the affluent, educated and thoroughly integrated generation in its late twenties and early thirties.

The tragedy of Hakoah is that the grand, non-ethnic design buildozed home so relentlessly by the moguls of the Australian Soccer Federation has pushed the club to the edge of extinction.

The only glimmer of hope seems to be in the growing awareness among a section of the soccer team's following, that the current spate of rumours about ceasing prosoccer operations may be, to quote a long-standing fan, "a put-up job".

"I believe the rumours are being planted and spread among those sections of the club's following who, traditionally, do not express their opinions in any militant manner," he said.

"Thus the groundwork is seemingly being laid for a situation where certain sections of the Hakoah Club leadership will be in the position to claim that the members are 'demanding' discontinuation of the pro teams in the name of cutting down on expenses."

appearances for the New York Cosmos?

And what are the chances of rock music heavies Rick Wakeman, Paul Simon and Peter Frampton turning out for the Philadephia Fury?

But the big question is: which club will sign Scottish 'international' star Rod Stewart?

Although it's unlikely that any of these big-name rock stars will be playing in the North America Soccer League, you can bet the celebrities would dearly love to get out on a ground and knock a ball around with the Bests, the Beckenbauers, the Marshs and the Muellers.

with the Bests, the Beckenbauers, the Marshs and the Muellers.
The stars mentioned are just a few of the big names getting involved with the NASL. Wearing a Cosmos shirt at the Giants Stadium is becoming just as 'hip' as being photographed at New York's exclusive Studio 54 disco.
Teenage singing idol Leif Garrett is the latest big name to become part of the NASL, not only is Garrett an ardent Cosmos fan, he is signed to Atlantic Records, a subsidiary of Warner Communications, which owns the Cosmos. Getting him to play for the Cosmos would be easier than you think.

Leif has a regular Sunday session with Rod Stewart. The pair arrange matches at Pepperdine University, Malibu, with an open invitation to Frampton, Simon, Waleman, Mick Jagger and Ronnie Woods (of the Rolling Stones) to join in.
The music industry isn't discussed, as the celebrities take their soccer seriously.

Garrett even carries a soccer ball with him on tour, to fill in time before interviews and rehearsals.

Garrett recently was involved with some promouonal work at the NY Cosmos' home game with Fort Lauderdale Strikers. He kicked balls into the stands and by all reports, showed considerable ability.

Della Rocca was part of Juve's golden era of 10,000-plus crowds and domination of the Victorian State League.

"I could not have been even to the would not have accepted." Pat's consistancy is remarkable. He started out as the raw youngster at 18 in 1964, and now is the veteran in 1979. The reason behind that is simple. "I never bludge at training," said 'Della Rocca, "It's one of my strict rules that I train my hardest all the time to keep in top condition. If a player is fit he gets the benefit during a match.

Pat knows the problem.

Pat knows the problem exists in junior soccer coaching, He's been involved with the Juventus juniors for the past three years. In fact, a young boy who was coached by Pat as an.under 16, is now playing alongside his former coach.

Asked if that made him feel old, Pat replied: "No, not at all. I feel very proud that the player I coached made it into the first team."

The player in question is Oscar Crino. a Victorian Schoolboys and Youth team representative, who has made a great impact in the State Leapue this season.

Crino has scored five goals in a handful of games, and is set for a bright future in the game.

"Tony is a very hard coach," said Pat. "He gets what he wants, and lets you know about it if you do some-thing wrong. He was hard in 1970, but now he's even hard-er."

It was playing under Boggi that Della Rocca had his most memorable game. It was a round 21 State League championship match in 1970 at Ringwood against Wilhemina.

"To clinch the championship we had to win the game," said Pat. "Ringwood had some very good players like Dave Pygall, Wim Spiekerman, Freddy Bunce and Mike Pye.

"The score was 2-2 with about four minutes to go when Gareth Salisbury scored the winner. I felt just beautiful, "remembered Pat as he relived the experience.

But, of course, there were forgettable games for Pat.

"My most disappointing game was in 1960. We were playing Croatia in the Ampol Cup and needed only a draw to qualify for the semi final," said Pat. "The score was 1-inear the end of the game when I turned to pass the ball back to Jack Reilly in goal.

"Unfortunately, my pass went straight to JImmy Mackay and he scored. Be-cause of my mistake, Croatia went into the semi finals and Juventus was knocked out."

Pat Della Rocca, the 400-plus game veteran who joined Juventus from non-league Kensington, is a credit to Aus-tralian soccer.

Smoking players lose fitness

Cigarettes can reduce a player's fitness by 20 per cent.

This was one of the major pieces of information which came out of the sports medi-cine seminar held in Sydney cine seminar held in Sydney recently.

Dr. Buddy MacDessi, from Sutherland hospital, made the statement at the seminar organised by the Sutherland-St George hranch of the NSW Soccer conches association. He said carbon monoxide and tar from cigarettes are what cause the drop in fitness. Carbon monoxide damages the red cells in the blood which transports oxygen through the body.

The tar builds up on the sides of the air tubes through which the body takes in air through the lungs.

Thus the smoker is not able to take as much oxygen into his body as the non-smoker and he is not able to transport it through the body as effectively.

Usas aware that the use of oxygen is the be-all and end-all of fitness.

I was a little disappointed to see only 60 people attend the seminar, where entrance was free, to hear sports medicine experts such as Dr Peter Malouf and physiotherapist, whiss Ferry Boshell, both of whom assist the Sharks League Club, former Saints conditioner, Ken Boothroyd and top nutritional adviser Dr MacDessi. Miss Boshell Thumb kneeding of corked thighs was damaging. Spas or using a kickboard in a heated pool were excellent for this type of injury, plus general muscle injuries.

Ken Boothroyd advised against going from grass to road surfaces because of

MONAR WODEN MERGERA MUST FOR PS

By DEREK R. PEACHEY. publicity officer, ACT Soccer Federation

Soccer fans the world over are astute enough to recognise a good thing when they it and to want the best entertainment possible for their money.

Fans in the Australian Capital Territory are no less astute and, since the advent of the Philips Soccer League, have become addicted to the best soccer entertainment available to them Philips Soccer League.

Soccer entertainment available to them — the Philips Soccer League.

Arguments that the ACT hasn't the numbers to satisfactorily support Camberra City and a second PSL side carry no weight with the potential 8,000 fans residing in Camberra and neighbouring New South Wales town, Queanbeyan.

Those who believe the fans support Camberra City are living under an illusion. The fans support the national league.

Before City's fans and administrators get hot under the collar I feel I should explain my reasoning. I beg their indulgence.

Pre-PSL top ACT clubs invariably enjoyed attendances of anything from 1500 to 3,000 spectators, depending on which teams were playing and, as one can image, climatic conditions prevailing at the time.

Since the advent of PSL Camberra City has enjoyed attendances well in excess of 6,000 regularly passed through the turnities of the National Athletic Stadium, proving, with regular consistency, that there were more paying spectators in the ACT than in any other area in which PSL clubs performed other than, possibly, Adelaide.

Average PSL attendance in the past three years has increased from 35,000 a week to around 43,000 with the advent of Newcastle Chased on my own records).

Approximately 18% of PSL spectators in the first two years watched their games at the ACT's National Athletic Stadium. Newcastle's phenomenal success in terms of attendance figures has decreased the ACT's statistic somewhat and, indeed, recentatendances at Camberra City games have been disappointing. However, when Camberra City is not at home ACT fans are. Having had their soccer appetites whetted by PSL games it would appear that ACT fans no longer accept just any soccer, no matter what the standard. If they did one could expect to see top ACT clubs benefitting from their attendance when PSL games are not available to them.

Quite the reverse is the expected the totate in the open did.

At I cluss cenerating from their attendance when 130 games are not available to them.

Quite the reverse is true, unfortunately.

Juventus and Croatia Deakin, crowds at ACT Soccer Federation games rarely exceed 250. On a fine day a West Woden Juventus — Croatia Deakin game will draw between, 1,500 and 2,000 spectators. More than is enjoyed by many PSL clubs on any weekend. Inter-Monaro, the NSW Pepsi State League side that is partnering West Woden Juventus in a bid to enter a Camberra-Queanbeyan side in the PSL, attracts an average of 2,000 spectators at home. When it moved its venue to the National Athletic Stadium for one game it drew over 3,000.

Figures such as these must add weight to the argument that ACT soccer fans want value for money. They want to see top soccer and, at present, PSL is as high as they can go. If they were all true blue Camberra City fans why are they conspicuous in their absence at games featuring City's reserves, the Camberra City Roos, which includes PSL players such as former soccero. A recent assessment of junior development by ASF Junior Development Officer. Brian Emery, places the ACT, with a 21.5 plaving percentage, second only to NSW at 24.5.

With his nursery potential the argument for, or against, a second PSI, side from the ACT should be purely academic. In fact, ACT should be arguing the ease for three, with an option of a fourth. It is, after all, more than twice as strong as Victoria (9.37%) in junior playing potential and almost twice that of Queensland (11.8%).

Victoria has three PSI sides, Queensland two and New South Wales has more than its fair share with six.

If the imbalance of PSI, representation continues into the 1980's there is a grave danger that the success of the PSI in the ACT will diminish, too.

If the fans are starved of PSI, games now, with games often three weeks apart, and no prospect of their appetite being more frequently statisfied in the future, recent converts to our code will soon lose interest and return to their former interests. In fact, this may afready be happening.

Recent attendance at Canberra (1) games has shown a sharp decline although its game against Newcastle KB United will undoubtedly give the ACT side a muchaned do KB.

Well aware of this Queanbeyan's Marco Polo Club and Canberro's Istole-Australian Club are determined to pursue their joint aim of membership in the PSL, combining the successful inter-Monaro and West Woden Juventus clubs to form a much needed second PSL side for the ACT's thousands of fans.

Inventus president, Joe Fusca, has clearly stated that his club needs the challenge of stronger competition. "We have the players and the money to go looking for it. If Wollongong is omitted from the proposed league of the competition will be weakened and we might as well look elsewhere."

If the PSL is serious in its intention to boost the appeal of its competition it couldn't go far wrong in consolidating its appeal in areas where a thirst for more has been created.

BAKER BEATS BUDGET

A retired Canberra baker, Jim Grice, didn't need either the Treasurer, Mr. Howard, or the Opposition Leader, Mr. Hayden, to help him make dough last week.

While the Treasurer was delivering his Budget speach in the House, Jim, 68, learned that he and his wife Mary, 54, had won $271,813.30 on the Pools.
"I couldn't give a hoot about the Budget now," joked Jim. "Just ask Mr. Howard how much he wants." Jim and Mary are now retired at Batem in's Bay, but he was formally managing director of Canberra's Srowqueen Bakery and president of Canberra's Master Bakers' Association.

Both are keen bowlers, and to make it a winning day all round, Mary played in her first pennant bowls match and won. ## Preston seeks support from Melbourne clubs league club Preston Makedonia is arranging a meeting with Melbourne's three Philips League clubs to gain support for its application for PSL membership.

away, its supporters will watch one of the other three teams — particularly Footscray.

Rivalry between the four clubs would stimulate interest and therefore boost crowd figures.

and therefore boost crowd figures.

At the moment, South Melbourne and Heidelberg can look forward to one bumper crowd each, when they play each other.

Footscray's biggest crowds come from home matches against South Melbourne and Heidelberg.

The addition of Makedonia would add another big pay day to the other three clubs.

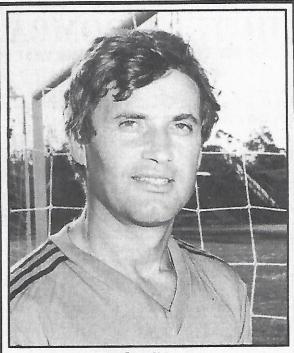

At the moment, Makedonia plays in opposition to PSL fixtures.

The present structure of the league appears lopsided. Sydney is represented by five teams. Melbourne by only three and Brisbane by two whereas Queenslanders in the know believe that it would be more realistic for Brisbane to have only one team in the league.

Makedonia would have the added advantage of being able to draw fans away from home, the way Footscray does.

Few other clubs are able to do this.

Most PSL clubs have lost support since the league start-ed. Makedonia's arguments may therefore gain the sup-port Vrzina is seeking.

Both teams must keep on picking up points to make sure of finishing in the top four. One supporter foreshadowed that if satisfactory answers are not forthcoming a motion will be put to change the soccer team's name from Sydney City back to Hakoah.

"Although one could be forgiven for not realising it for all the 'emphasis' the club has put on it, 1978 marks the 40th anniversary of Sydney Hakoah," one club stalwart remarked.

"If we are to disappear from top soccer I and others like me would rather see us kicked out of the PSI. for being Hakoah, the die a quiet and unobtrusive death as Sydney City just to make a few ASF leaders in their ivory towers comfortable," he said.

The situation with Hakoah is sad — one can almost say tragic—and a warning to other Australian soccer clubs, which they can only ignore at their own peril.

As the game developed, Robert Marwe became Adel-alde City's most dangerous at-tacker. Playing deep on the right flank, Marwe was quiet for long periods, giving Jin Tansey a false sense of security. Marwe would then ghost through steathhily and appear in front of goal for a shot or header.

Jimmy Rooney and Jim Campbell were excellent in midfield, but Campbell could have delivered earlier passes a few times to realise the full potential of his great runs.

The Heidelberg attacking trio had a hard time but they were always constructive when they found an inch of space in which to move. In the 28th minute Marwe put the ball into the net by returning a short defensive clearance in a goalmouth serimmage but referee Doug Rennie, who did a good job, rules offside and disallowed the goal.

City were not done with, however, and in the 90th minute. Gaffnev again reduced the deficit to that single goal when he finished off a goalmouth scramble, shortly after Campbell had stroked a shot across the face of the goal.

SYDNEY OLYMPIC O CANBERRA CITY 0

Mike Johnson

Ground: Pratten Park Scores: Nil Weather: Fine Crowd: 1642 Referee: Rampley 8

The lack of finishing ability in the Sydney Olympic and Canberra City line-ups was very evident at Pratten Park.

Both teams were busy in mid field and Olympic mounted many attacks from there, finishing with numerous crosses from the wings.

Throughout the first half, this produced only one goal chance to Andy Scott, following a miss by Steve Hoszowski from a cross from Olympic left back Ian Rowden.

The cross beat Hoszowski's outstretched hands but Scott headed wide.

Canberra attacked less than Olympic and, usually, these attacks came through the middle but only two good chances came their way.

One was to Ian McLaren, following a through pass which caught Olympic marker Derek Laing on the wrong side of the Canberra winger.

McLaren should have scored but shot past the post.

Bernard Lustica had the other Canberra goalchance, following a typical crazy dribble by Terry Byrne but he also shot past.

Byrne, surprisingly, was operating in mid-field with Isaac Farrell operating in Byrne's usual central strikers' role.

Olympic's Laing was also in a strange role at right back, to make way for Alex Jamieson, recovered from injury. Jamie-son was prominent in attack for Olympic in the first half.

The pattern of play continued throughout the second half with Olympic threatening only at set plays when they threw their big men, Roden, Bell and later McIntosh forward, and Canberra on breaksweeper and John Sneddon taking Bertogna's position in the midfield.

Although both players did well in their new positions, prinkwater's leadership in the defence was sadly missed.

The Lions front line of Hughes and Fairbrother, with Connor and Millman joining in on the flanks continued to harrass the Newcastle defence in the second half until it eventually capitulated.

It was a deflection from Newcastle's defence that put Connor into space on the right and his diagonal shot was scrambled over the line by Ron Millman.

At that stage, it looked as if Newcastle would have held on for a hard-fought 2-1 victory but, with seven minutes remaining, an incredible reflex reaction by Col Curran presented the visitors with a penalty.

From a shot that looked like it could have been covered by Phill Dando in goal, Curran istinctively lifted his right hand and the ball was on the spot.

The shot from the penalty spot was taken by Jin Hermishot save do to have been covered by his hot save do to have been covered by his hot save do to he had his shot save do to he had his shot save do to he had his shot save do to he had to the ball furran's indiscretion more and an otherwise good next.

The Canberra breakaways were usually mounted by Isaac Farrel, who operated between the two strikers Lustica and McLaren, who was always dangerous, and his midfield.

Byrne was even further back in a deep central midfield role, where he was buried in the mass of players.

Mike Cross was effective in midfield for Olympic though, strangely, this extremely fleet-footed player was on the right of the midfield with Peter Raskopoulos, a very powerful right-footed player on the left midfield.

Cross did a good job cov-ering right back Derek Laing, who continued his attacking role in the second half.

The quality of balls hit into the penalty box by Cross and Raskopoulos however suffered as they delayed getting the ball on their best foot or lost accuracy when hitting them in with their weaker foot.

Headers by replacement striker McIntosh and Clive Faton and blocked shots by Teaton and Scott were all Olympic could muster in the second period, while Canberra had good chances to McLaren and Byrne, both saved by Peter Wilson. In the final minute Hogg missed from a Farrell cross.

So a lot of energy and involvement by both teams came to nought, because of the lack of finishing which has enabled Marconi to score more goals than these two teams combined — something both clubs management will have to turn their attention to in the closed season.

Valcareggi in Sydney for lectures

By ALEX VESIC

Ferruccio Valcareggi the former Italian national team manager arrives in Australia tomorrow (Thursday) to give a series of lectures which I am sure will provide many of our junior as well as senior coaches with additional knowledge in the ever-changing field of modern football.

Valcareggi, who was the mational team manager from 1966 and 1974, will lecture at Ca'dor Chema at 223 Great North Road, Five Dock. It is anticipated that Valcareggi will have two separate sessions with the first finishing just before lunch, and the second taking place just after lunch.

Victoria strengthened

Victoria strengthened its position as the premier soccer State of Australia when it won the National Schoolboys' chempionship in Brisbane last week.

Victoria is the current Youth champion, a title it won in Melbourne earlier this year and Len McKendry's State said eis the unofficial champion at senior level.

It was the work of Jimmy Melbourne, Juventus and Hakoah striker, that played a big part in the victory of the Schoolboys team in Brisbane.

Armstrong took over as coach at the last minute when Bobby McLachlan was unable to be in Brisbane, and produced an excellent team.

His task was made harder when Rudi Schaffner of Kellor

South Melbourne had to make four appearances as a substitute in an outfield position!
Apart from winning the tournament, Victoria had four players selected in the Australian Schoolboys' team. They are Charlie Yankos, Steve Blair, Oscar Crino and Daryl Gooch.

Other players in the 16-man nustralian squad are Grant Lee, Peter Raach, David Smith, Peter VALE, Ian Watson (NSW), Brett Beves, Gary Phillips, Howard Tredinnick (NSW), Tony Burley, Ross Swan, David Whyte (Old).

Northern NSW goalkeeper Brett Beves was named player of the series.

Victoria's win was built around central defenders Yankos of Heidelberg Utd and Blair of Albion Rovers.

Although he has appeared in only nine Philips League championship matches and one Philips Cup fixture, Seddon is in fourth place in the club's Player of the Year Award competition with an average rating of 7.52. That is only 23 below that of Roy Drinkwater who holds top place after playing in 22 League, four Cup and three other official matches.

"It will be nothing short of tragic if a player of lan's worth and ability is forced out of the game," said Alan Vest. "He is a fine player and we want him badly. We've all got our fingers crossed hoping that the operation is a complete success."

He said he had agreed to accept terms offered by the club's directors and would readily put his signature to new contract when it is prepared.

He said he was completely satisfied with the terms and conditions offered him. Vest also said he had received attractive offers from several clubs to change camps. But he wanted to stay in Newcastle.

"We are very close to having a fine team, as our climb on the points score table this season suggests, and It like to be part of the great development that is certain to come."

However, the glad news of Vest's decision to stay with the club was tinged with some gleem since the likelihood of Ken Boged accepting one of the many offers made to his much nearer than had been thought likely a few weeks ago.

The simple fact is that KB United, despite its great success this season, cannot afford to meet Vest's terms and those Boden is seeking.

afford to meet Vest's terms and those Boden is seeking.

While the club's financial position is sound it must balance its budget which was heavily tiled towards the debit side in its first season in the Philips League.

The cost of forming the team and attracting public support in that first year were particularly heavy and the budget has to be balanced.

"If KB United meets Boden's terms there will not be any finance to sign players for next season," said Vest.
"And we need one or two new ones."

There is, of course, the consolation that KB United can ask for, and is certain to receive, a sizeable transfer fee for Boden.

Vest faced a most formidable task when he agreed to become manager-coach of KB United. First and foremost, he had to build a team that could hold its place in the Philips League when the KB United application to join the August soccer body was approved. And that meant holding a place not for just one season but for many to come.

He was given little more than pocket-money with which to build a side.

Vest has succeeded beyond all expectations, despite a spate of difficulties of varying kinds which would have made a man of lesser spirit and dedication quall before the immensity of the task.

He pushed KB United into a reasonably prominent place in the Philips League championship last season, took it to a place the Philips League in the competition for the first eight weeks.

Then injury after injury to key players disrupted his careful, thoughful planning. But, being the dour, determined Yorkshireman that he is, Vest plugged on, solving problem after problem in his practical, hard-headed manner until mobe has the team near the top of the table again.

he has the team near the top of the table again.

He has done this with a team that may well be described as being made up of part partimers, able to train for only a limited period three times a week— and seldom with all members of the squad present at the same time.

This means that Vest cannot coach the younger players as he is so eager to do. There is not the time for him to do as he wants.

he is so eager to do. There is not the time for him to do as he wants.

Alan Vest is, first and foremost, a realist. He fully recognises, and accepts, the limitations imposed on him but cheerfully makes do with whi he has. # PROMOTION—FOR THE

As soccer grows at the top level, the headlines are taken up more and more by the big-time clubs — Marconi, APIA, Heidelberg, Brisbane City, Newcastle, Canberra, Adelaide City, Preston Makedonia, Sydney Croatia...and the local leagues. Frankston Pines is a glowing example of this growth.

Frankston Pines Soccer Club is at last getting the recognition, it so richly deserves. Their first year in the Metropolitan League has seen their senior team as Fourth Division leaders for most of the season, and at the time of writing, their reserves are top of the reserve league.

The home of Frankston
Pines is at Monterey
Boulevard, where their facilities are the envy of all visiting teams. There are two excellent enclosed grounds and a third training pitch, that is fully standing Frankston Council.

As well as the two senior teams, Frankston Pines have always had their fair share of juniors, and this year is no exception.

There are nine junior teams with age groups from Under 8's, through to Under 16's making an average total of 120 boys.

Frankston Pines are one of the few clubs who register all their juniors free of charge. They are also supplied with a club strip, the only stipulation being that the boys supply their own socks, due to health reasons.

Obviously, with this amount of juniors, you've got to look admiringly at the job being done by junior secretary Billy Rust, and all the coaches and managers who spend their free time coaching these kids. No praise can be high enough.

It's often said that the strength of a club lies within its juniors and Frankston Pines have proved this theory to be true. Out of the 16 players used for first team duty this year, no fewer than nine have come up through the junior ranks, surely something to be proud of, and a feat of which not too many clubs can hoast. many clubs can boast.

The foundation of Frankston Pines goes back to the mid 1960's when it was known as "The Pines Boys Soccer Club," due to the fact that they started off with juniors only.

A lot of the parents also enjoyed a bit of a "kick around" on Sunday afternoons, so it was only natural that a senior team was formed. After a succession of friendly games, they entered into competition and in their first season, 1967, finished runners-up in the South Yarra league.

The following year, "the Pines" went one step better by going on to win their firstever championship, becoming premiers of the District League.

The players who were part of this historic event were: P. Blasby, B. Jack-son, T. Tennent, J. John-again.

During these years in the wilderness, Frankston Pines Soccer Club, was rapidly growing in membership and had gathered a group of loyal supporters who eventually were to make the club the thriving europes it is today.

It was these supporters, who in 1972, totally financed the building of new clubrooms, to the tune of $25,000.

Season 1973 saw Frank-ston Pines competing in the Provisional League and for the second succes-sive year, they were league champions, but the victory celebrations were somewhat jaded by the Frankston Pines started the season showing plenty of determination, and carried on that way, going 17 games undefeated before losing at home to Hamlyn Rangers.

In those 17 games, they scored 50 goals to 14. From the Hamlyn game, Pines struggled to find form, and finished the last five games with only one win and two draws. Fortunately this had no bearing on the end result, and Frankston Pines were champions for 1978.

For the second year in succession, Pines won their way through to the final of the Provisional League Cup and the players were keen to emulate Werribee by winning the double.

The opponents this time were Nunawading City, and in a tough game, that saw three players being sent off. Frankston Pines were beaten 3-2 and gain missed out on the elusive Provisional League Cup.

The reserves, coached by Graham Watson, fin-ished in second place with promise being shown by some young players, and the third team finished in third position.

In the words of the Frankston Pines song, "Ther's many unsung heroes" and indeed there are many who have put in long hours and hard work, but none more so than the two men who have shared the president's job over the past eight years — David Bonar (Sen.) in 1972-73-74-76 and John Hodgson 1975-77-78-79. Krongold added that Hakoah's second Is-raeli international, Shraga Topolanski, was also treated harshly, and had to leave the field against Croydon City last week because of vig-orous tackles on him.

"At one game Topolanski and Feigenbaum played together, the ground announcer made special mention of the two and the numbers they were wearing," said Dennis. "I'm sure several opposition players made a mental note of the numbers, and made sure they were not allowed to show their class."

Merger?

Juventus (Vic) has called a meeting of members to vote on the proposed amalgamation with Provisional League club Thomastown.

The meeting will be at Club Cayour in South Melbourne on Sun-day, September 9 at 7.30 pm.

Juventus has about 300 members

Thomastown's members have al-ready approved the proposed amai-gamation.

A team of former Juventus players will play Melbourne Hun-garia old boys in a curtain raiser to the Juventus/Hakoah State League game scheduled for September 16 at Olympic Park.

And ex-Juventus players wishing to play should contact George Penzo (308 1700) or Rocco Di Zlo (592 3887).

NCF meets

The Northern Coaches Federation (Vic) will have a meeting at the Gladstone Park Reserve, Tullamarine, on Monday, September 3 at 7 pm.

The meeting is to prepare for the preliminary coaching course at Sunbury at the end of October.

Four senior badge coaches will be at the meeting — Fred Brooks, Mike Lynn, Alan Centry and George Train.

MONEY MAGIC

Six players could be the ideal numbe for a group, and for a moderate outlay, each member could pick up a sizeable fortune, my planned entry for this week could prove to be a good money spinner for six players at a dollar a head.

As I mentioned previously until the form settles down we shall have to rely on luck with our selections.

Last week I listed the 36 top scoring clubs and the draws analysis for the U.K. season 1978-79. This can help with your choice of matches and hopefully it may steer a reader to landing the jackpot. This week there are seven of those coincidence games where the names of the opposing sides begin with the same leter Although this can hardly be recommended through form study — many of these type of games have proved to end in draws. And strange that it may sound, I have read some famous pools writers articles where they have suggested the inclusion of such games when making planned entries.

Perhaps it would be too much to expect all these games to end level but you may care to include a few of them in your se-lections, the matches are: Brighton v Bol-ton, Manchester United v Middle-sborough, Birmingham v Bristol Rovers, Leicester v Luton, Watford v West Ham, Port Vale v Peterborough and St Mirren v Stenhimuir.

This week's planned entry covers 16 matches. If you would like to try this bet I have left a blank line in the diagram for your selections. It will involve 4 entries of system 12 and at $1.50 each the investment is $6.00.

is $6:00. Choose your 16 matches and mark them in the diagram. When you have entered your selections on the blank line, use the corresponding X's as set out in the diagram as you transfer your numbers on to the entry form.

 With eight score draws in any one of the four system entries a first dividend would be assured. If you have nine score draws falling anywhere among your 16 selections you would be certain of having at least seven score draws in five lines of your entry.

Until next week, good luck and good punting. Michael Morley.

There were eight score draws and three scoreless draws in the 55 matches played last Saturday.

Score draws (3 pts): 7, 14, 16, 19, 25, 28, 30, 50. Scoreless draws (2 pts):

ATTACKING AE SAVES FA

AEK Athens showed its true colours with a marvellous display of attacking soccer against Heidelberg Utd last Wednesday night at Olympic Park.

AEK won 3-1, but had it not been for the erratic finishing of Christos Ardizoglou, the score would have been much higher.

Ardizoglou gave a breath taking display of dribbling to tear the guts out of the Heidelberg defence.

He showed good understanding with the masterly Dusan Bajevic, and in the second half, these two showed the Heidelberg defenders the finer points of the one-two pass on several occasions.

The individual skills of these players marked AEK in a class above Heidelberg, which struggled to find rhythm.

AEK redeemed itself in the eyes of the many Greek fans who were disgusted with the Greek champion's display against Victoria, which ended in a four-goal drubbing for AEK.

The fans were gleefully happy, not only with the win over Heidelberg, but the way the players won the 'match with pure skills.

Greek football is all about individuals. The players who can score goals and dribble opponents are the 'stars', while players who run and fight for ninety minutes, but lack explosive skills, are ignored.

The defensive qualities of AEK are questionable. Al-though the defence was far-better than it was against Vic-toria, Heideberg was still able to carve out clear cut chances throughout the match.

In fact, with a little luck, Heidelberg could have levelled the score late in the game. However, this would have been an injustice.

Heidelberg slumped, and offered little resistance.
It was only a matter of time before another goal was added, and in the 70th minute Ardizoglou's superb diagonal pass gave Vladic the chance to make the score 3-1, which he did with a shot that found its way under Banovic's body from close range.
Bannon blocked Bajevic's shot on the line, and Ardi-from close range.

Bannon blocked Bajevic's shot on the line, and Ardisoglou again missed an easy goal. Kalaitzidis then missed an angled shot after coming up from full back.

Then came Heidelberg's late comeback. Campbell sent Buljevic away, and with only the goalkeeper to beat, 'Buljo' fulfed his shot.

Soon after, a thundering Taylor volley was brilliantly saved by Ikonomopolos.

AEK ran out deserved winners. The defensive pair of Intoglou and Damianidis was solid in the centre, although both full backs were suspect.

However, Pat Bannon gave his all and Tansey and Yzendoorn had respectible games. The Heidelberg forward line struggled after the opening period becausethe team's midfield was overshadowed. #### LEAGUE GAME

Bosch Dynamo head the ladder after their two-goal victory over a score-less R.A.C.V. Standard of play was fairly even to the 40-minute mark when Bosch's ANGFLO VENEZIANO was awarded a disputed goal. This seemed to unsettle the R.A.C.V. side for the remainder of play. During the break R.A.C.V. reorganised field positions and changed truck; placing more men in defence to contain the Bosch attack. Bosch scored body one more for more than the 80-minute mark RAYMODD MINO pit one way from a corner.
